Why is life insurance important. Picture: SUPPLIED

LIFE insurance is about helping you protect what you care about most – your loved ones and your futures.

It's about your family keeping your home, your children continuing tertiary education, your spouse living the life you both planned together, or your business partner being able to continue the business without you, if you meet an untimely passing.

It also enables you to plan forward for future financial needs like covering your children's tertiary education expenses, starting a business, expanding your current business or retirement – fulfilling all these needs with cash returns or maturity payouts.

Just as you insure your physical assets to protect yourself from unexpected risks, similarly, life insurance is about insuring your life, enabling you and your family's financial protection.

People don't often discuss the possibility of accidents, illnesses, and deaths, but these incidents happen around us every day.

These can be mitigated with Life Insurance.
